Couldn't Get Mr. Sears, Corespondent Said, if He Belonged to Mrs. Sears.

GAVE HIM INSPIRATION.

This, Says Witness, Is Explanation That Pauline Langdon Made to Her.

A score of fashionably dressed romen, members of the two factions of the New Thought Church gathered in Justice Glegerich's part of the Supreme Coust to-day where they heard Miss Mary F. Broch, a member of the church testify in favor of Dr. Julia Seton Sears, founder of the New Thought Cult in New York City, who is suing Frank W. Sears, also a leader in the church, for divorce.

The Americanss will play another match on Wednesday, and on Friday the English challengers will play again on the international field. This probably will be the last game on the field until June 9, the day of the first international match. The other matches will be played on either Field No. 2 at Meadow Brock or the Phipps estate at Westbury.

A startling disclosure made by Miss Broch and which drew a show CALIFORNIA VOLCANO of disapproval from the admirers of Mr. Soars was that Miss Pauline Langdon, the young co-respondent in the case, had confessed that she was "Mr. Sears's inspiration." Mr. Sears, who has infused some novel ideas into the New Thought belief, and Dr. Sears have both organised separat churches.

"After I had followed Mr. Seas and Miss Langdon about togethe to the Maryland Hotel and where," said Miss Broch, "I met Miss Langdon and told her that I though she ought not to go with Mr. Sears as it was not pleasant for Dr. Sears "'Only the gossiping cats will make mischief,' was the curt reply she gave me.
